Taste Fiordland with a Fiord Board

We've selected the best of Fiordland's produce to showcase the incredible flavours our remote region offers. Below are some featured stories told by the produce on your Fiord Board.

Wild Fiordland venison salami

This salami is made from roaming and wild Fiordland venison and is produced by Fare Game. Fare Game take their venison from the mountains of Fiordland where they're fuelled by lush vegetation, fresh water, and clean mountain air. The salami ingredients reflect Fiordland's pristine environment with no nasty stuff, only natural goodness.

Cold smoked Rakiura salmon

This cold smoked king salmon comes from the pristine waters of Rakiura Stewart Island. King salmon were originally brought to New Zealand from California and are well known for being the ultimate salmon species for taste, texture, and nutrition. This salmon is cold smoked using traditional methods and features a hint of dill and lemon.

Mānuka smoked olives

Olives that bring more flavour. The olives featured on your Fiord Board are cold smoked with New Zealand mānuka wood chips and are marinated in premium olive oil. The smoking techniques used are traditional, creating a unique flavour to New Zealand.

Hummus with saffron oil

Classic hummus topped with a golden and rich saffron oil. You might think of saffron originating from Asia, but the one featured with your hummus today is grown close to Te Anau and is known for its strong honeyed flavour and rich red appearance.

Putangi Conservation

Enjoy a wine that does good

Have you tried our conservation wine? Introducing Wet Jacket's 'Putangi' Pinot Noir, a delicious drop that donates $10 to conservation projects for every bottle sold. The conservation projects included are either in Pātea Doubtful Sound or Piopiotahi Milford Sound.

Doubtful Sound

Purchasing the Putangi on a RealNZ vessel in Doubtful Sound will contribute to removing pests from Bauza Island. Bauza Island's proximity to both mainland Fiordland and Secretary Island makes it the perfect stepping stone for predators to travel. By regularly monitoring Bauza Island, Secretary Island is maintained as a refuge for vulnerable invertebrates and native tree species.

Milford Sound

Purchasing the Putangi Pinot Noir in Milford Sound donates to the project in Harrison Cove. This cove is a natural habitat for Fiordland crested penguins to breed and moult. Penguins can enjoy a stay in 'penguin hotels' which have been established around the foreshore for breeding females. Females and eggs are particularly vulnerable targets for pests, but the funds raised from the Putangi wine will help remove pests from the area and protect the penguins.

Wet Jacket

Wet Jacket's founder, Greg Hay, is passionate about conservation in Fiordland and is a trustee for Fiordland Conservation Trust. As well as RealNZ's contribution through bottle sales, Wet Jacket will donate 50% of their cellar door tasting fees to the projects. It's never been more tempting to enjoy a pinot!

Fun Fact

The name 'Putangi' is particularly relevant for this initiative as it was the name for the boat of the early conservationist, Richard Henry. He used his boat, the Putangi to travel around Dusky Sound and conduct early conservation.
